Shall We Let the Child Die?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way.

'Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will ave that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!" Well, try a bottle of Brown's Iron BITTERS on that child. See the poor ittle fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children have been brought almost from death to healthy life by Brown's ron Bitters. Your druggist sells it.
